James Justice wins NCAA Slam Dunk Contest

Justice was named the "2012 Dark Horse Dunker" after hundreds of thousands of votes were cast to determine which under-the-radar dunker deserved the last roster spot in the Denny's Slam Dunk Championship. Justice's between the legs alley-oop gave the 5-foot-10 guard the title in front of a sellout crowd at Fogelman Arena on the campus of Tulane University.

Subsequently, April 19 has been declared James Justice Day in Pulaski and Memphis, Tenn.

MMC students stun competition at Apellate Moot Court Collegiate Challenge

From the very start, the odds appeared stacked against Martin Methodist College in the 2011 Appellate Moot Court Collegiate Challenge.

Unlike several of the other 13 teams from colleges and universities across the state, the Martin Methodist group had no coach and no background in pre-law curriculum. In fact, none of the four members of the team had ever even witnessed a mock trial event, let alone competed in one at this high level. The two male members of the team – Michael Poirier and Ben Biddy – didn't even wear suit jackets with their ties and white shirts, a definite strike against them each time they stepped into the courtroom.

No doubt, as the Tennessee Intercollegiate State Legislature (TISL) began at the state capitol in Nashville on Thursday, Nov. 17, the Appellate Moot Court Collegiate Challenge (AMC3) team from Martin Methodist College was not considered a major threat to challenge the likes of Rhodes College, Tennessee Tech or Vanderbilt University.

That would all change over the next four days, and the team from Martin Methodist – enrollment 1,108 – would make history by capturing the top honor.

Twelfth Night

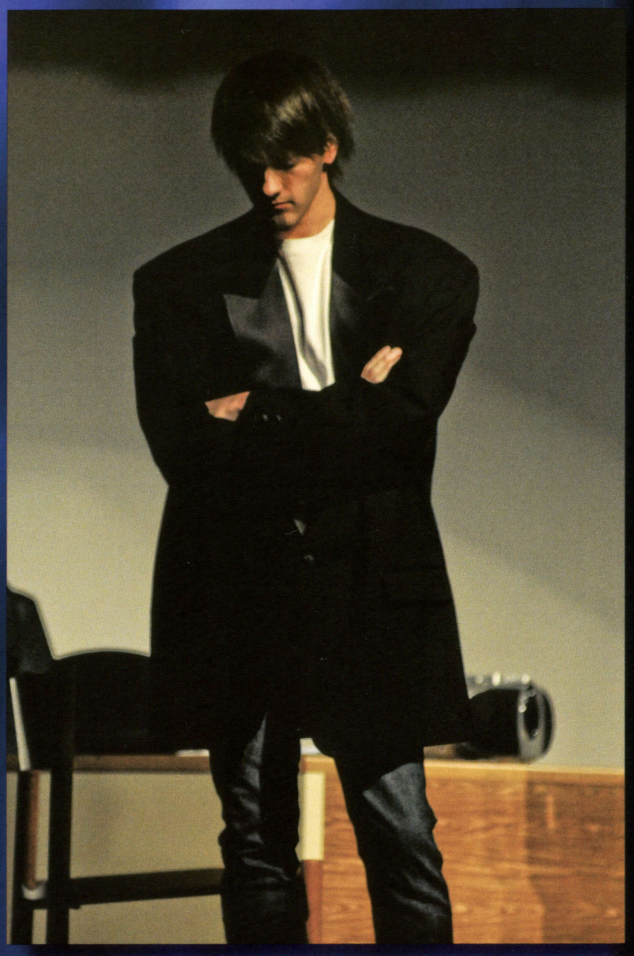

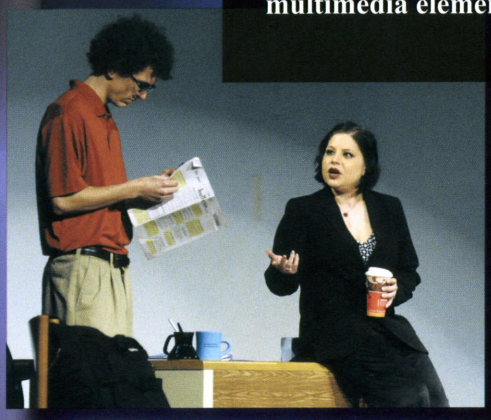

Speech and Debate

Speech and Debate, by Stephen Karam, is a play about teenagers coming to grips with sexual identity and prejudice and how the internet has changed the way people communicate. The play was a "dramedy" staged in Martin Hall with multimedia elements.

No Exit

"No Exit" is a 1944 existentialist French play by Jean-Paul Sartre. It is a depiction of the afterlife in which three deceased characters are punished by being locked into a room together for eternity, and is the source of one of Sartre's most famous and most often misinterpreted quotations, "l'enfer, c'est les autres," ("Hell is other people"), usually taken to refer to people in general, but in the context of the play it becomes clear that it means that certain other people can be the most effective form of hell.

-Cultural program of the year-

Blythe Spirit

Blithe Spirit is a comic play written by Noël Coward which takes its title from Percy Bysshe Shelley's poem "To a Skylark" ("Hail to thee, blithe Spirit! / Bird thou never wert"). The play concerns socialite and novelist Charles Condomine, who invites the eccentric medium and clairvoyant, Madame Arcati, to his house to conduct a séance, hoping to gather material for his next book. The scheme backfires when he is haunted by the ghost of his annoying and temperamental first wife, Elvira, following the séance. Elvira makes continual attempts to disrupt Charles's marriage to his second wife, Ruth, who cannot see or hear the ghost.

The Hypocrite

"The Hypocrite" was adapted by David Alford from the original 17th century classic comedy "Tartuffe" by Moliere. It centers around a kind of religious con artist who has duped the father of a wealthy southern family, and the family's hilarious efforts to get their dad to see the truth. It was staged in the Upperman Room at Martin Hall.
